AuZyn and Mehlan are back- and so is their drama. After surviving through the last book, their love and their relationship are now at a standstill. Will they be able to make it through the rainstorm or will their love be put on a permanent pause? There's one person that AuZyn loves more than anything in this world, and that's her father. But now he's back and stirring up mess between the two lovebirds. That alone causes more than enough problems in their love saga. In Mehlan's mind, if she can't stick up for him to her father, she's useless anywhere else as well. Critical is back, and he's back with a vengeance. The way he looks at it, everyone who had a part to play, even the smallest part, in his demise is about to feel a small piece of the hell he felt. Not used to not being on top, he quickly formulates a plan, but it involves starting at the top of the list and handling AuZyn's mom. Will his plan be detected and stopped before it's too late or will Critical be the reason everyone meets their demise?
