As highlighted in these pages, the Pendleton Round-Up has many singular features. First, there is its famous bucking horse logo and its signature slogan, Let er Buck. Then there are its unique long wooden chutes and hard grass turf. And from the very beginning, American Indians have been as much a part of the Round-Up scene as the cowboys and roughstock. In the rodeos Native American Village, Indians camp in traditional tipis and celebrate their long-standing cultural traditions. Beautifully designed, this book features a breadth of color and black-and-white photographs more than 900 showcasing the riders, the drama, and the special atmosphere that is Pendleton.
