Grayson Carver is in a tight spot. On one hand, he's doing his best to help the local wolf shifter pack and keep a promise. On the other, the wolves only see him as a rogue and an outcast, a troublemaker. But trouble is only the tip of the iceberg when a human woman wanders into their settlement, leaving Grayson to deal with her. Now the battle-hardened wolf may have just found his mate. April Nielson has made it her life's work to research and aid in the preservation of wolf packs nationwide. So when reports of wolf sightings in the sleepy town of Silver Lake drift in, she's immediately on the scene to do her job. But instead she comes across the most stubborn, tough-looking, and sexy man she's ever laid eyes on. One with piercing gray eyes and a body that is beyond even her wildest fantasies. Though Grayson knows he's supposed to send the little woman packing before she can uncover the secret of the pack's identity, Grayson's wolf has other plans. Like mating the wolf-obsessed researcher as soon as possible. But even as hot attraction explodes into earth-shattering romance, April knows there's something that Grayson's not telling her. Something that may just come back to bite them both. Mine Furever is the second book in my Built Fur Love series!
